DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-30 are allowed. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance.

As noted in the Appeal Brief (especially at pages 1-3), the mail issue has been the "virtual token." What is a "virtual token"? While this term can mean many things, the term "virtual token" can only be understood in the context of a "physical token." Thus, one must understand the meaning of what is meant by a "physical token" in a claim before one can understand what is meant by "virtual token"; the "virtual token" refers to the "physical token." What is a "physical token"? While a "physical token" can mean many things, one must look to the art and the context of the art before knowing the meaning.

In the Appeal Brief (albeit not before in the prosecution history), the applicant narrowed and specified the meaning of "physical token." This is particularly clear in the Argument section (not merely in the Summary of the Invention section) in which the applicant states this to be the TPM described in the Trusted Platform Computing Alliance (TPCA) Main Specification, Version 1.1, 31 July 2001.

With such particular definition of physical token, the definition of the virtual token is now narrowed. Each claim contains references to the physical token and the virtual token. The prior art did not teach or suggest the particular features of the claims.

Conclusion
